per second, and at the time of the observation on the 21st inst. it had receded to such an enormous distance from the sun that its velocity was reduced to 58 miles per second. The middle place of observation is not as well which, however, subsequent observation, embracing longer intervals, will easily determine. The orbit of this comet is, according to the pre ceding elements, almost identical with that of the great comet of 1843, whose elements, reduced to he same equinox, are as follows: Perihelion passage, 1843, February 27 day, 9.8h.; longitude of perihelion, 279° 11'.5; longitude of ascending node, 1° 46'; inclination, 35° 40'.6; logarithm of perihelion distance, 7.74837; eccentricity, 0.9999 157; mo-

A Collision on the Pennsylvania Road. JERSEY CITY, N. J., Sept. 26.—The Easton express on the Lehigh Valley railroad ran into the rear car of a local train on the Pennsylvania railroad shortly before midnight last night, at East Newark. At that point a branch of the Pennsylvanta railroad leaves the main line and runs to Center street, Newark, rejoining the main line at Market street. Train No. 124 of the Pennsylvania railroad, due in Jersey City at 12:07 a.m., was being switched to the main line when the express. drawn by engine 188, dashed down the main track from Market street, Newark, and ran into the rear car of the local train. The engineer and fireman of the Lehigh train saved themselves by jumping. Two cars of the Pennsylvania train were demolished, and the Lehigh Valley engine was badiv broken up and thrown into a ditch into the side of the read. No passengers were injured, as there were but very few aboard, and they were all in the forward cars. The blame of the accident rests upon the engineer of the Lehigh valley train, as a danger signal was displayed for him to stop. A

SOME LIVELY VIRGINIA FARMERS.—In the Police Court this afternoon Robert Douglass, John James and John Robinson, all well-dressed farmers from Virginia, were before Judge Snell on the charge of disorderly conduct. Douglass was also charged with assaulting a colored boy named Henry Cole by firing a shot at him, and Robinson was charged with assaulting Charles Harris. Policemen Dail: and Shilling testified to hearing a pistol-shot at the corner of 11th and C streets about midnight last night, and on arriving at the place named put the defendants under arrest for disorderly conduct. They found a loaded pistol in a carriage in which Cole, testified that he found a horse and carriage on the street, with no one in the carriage, and started to take it to the station-house when he met the defendants, who claimed the team, He gave it to them, and asked them to pay him for his trouble, when Mr. Douglass took out a revolved and fired at him. He showed the court a hole through his coat and shirt and a mark on his arm which, he said, was made by the bullet. In the charge of assault against Robinson, Chas. Harris testisfied that he was with the boy that caught the horse and carriage, and when Mr. Douglass fired the pistol at Cole Robinson struck him in the eye with his fist. The court fined Douglass $100 or 90 days for assaulting Cole, and Robinson was fined so or 15 days. The charge of disorderly conduct was dismissed. Affairs in West Washington.

MYSTERY .- There appears to be considerable mystery surrounding the cause of death of the colored woman who arrived here on the canal boat ames Rivers last Friday night, and taken to the Freedmen's hospital Saturday, where she died Sunday. A STAR reporter this morning ascer-tained that there was no inquest held nor official mminent. Only one of the contingent, which arautopsy at the hospital. Acting Lieut. Swindells stated this morning that on Saturday morning last one of the hands employed on the canal boat apprised him of the fact that there was a sick woman on his boat, and desired to know what could be done with her. Questioning the man, he ascertained that she had walked aboard the boat our miles above Berlin. The captain's wife persuaded him to let her remain, as she appeared to be sick and distressed. She told the captain that she lived at Winchester; that her husband died during the war; that she had a daughter living in Philadelphia, and she was very destrous of going to Washington, on 41% street. She had a handkergla. She appeared to talk rationally at first, but he soon discovered that she was wandering in her mind. Lieut. Johnson, of the second precinct, states this morning that he met Dr. Hartigan on his return from the hospital yesterday morning. Dr. Hartigan told him he had been sent to hold an autopsy, but found on arriving that the physicians there had saved him that official duty, and he knew nothing more than what they told him, viz., that they found a dent on one side of the skull which pressed upon the brain, causing an irritation and the formation of pus. The dent was as if made from a blow by a blunt instrument. There were other wounds about her head. Death were withdrawn from the Central railroad this was caused by the dent in her skull, which may have been made two or three weeks ago.
